

Stardust's Cosmic Adventure

It's a part of everything and everyone

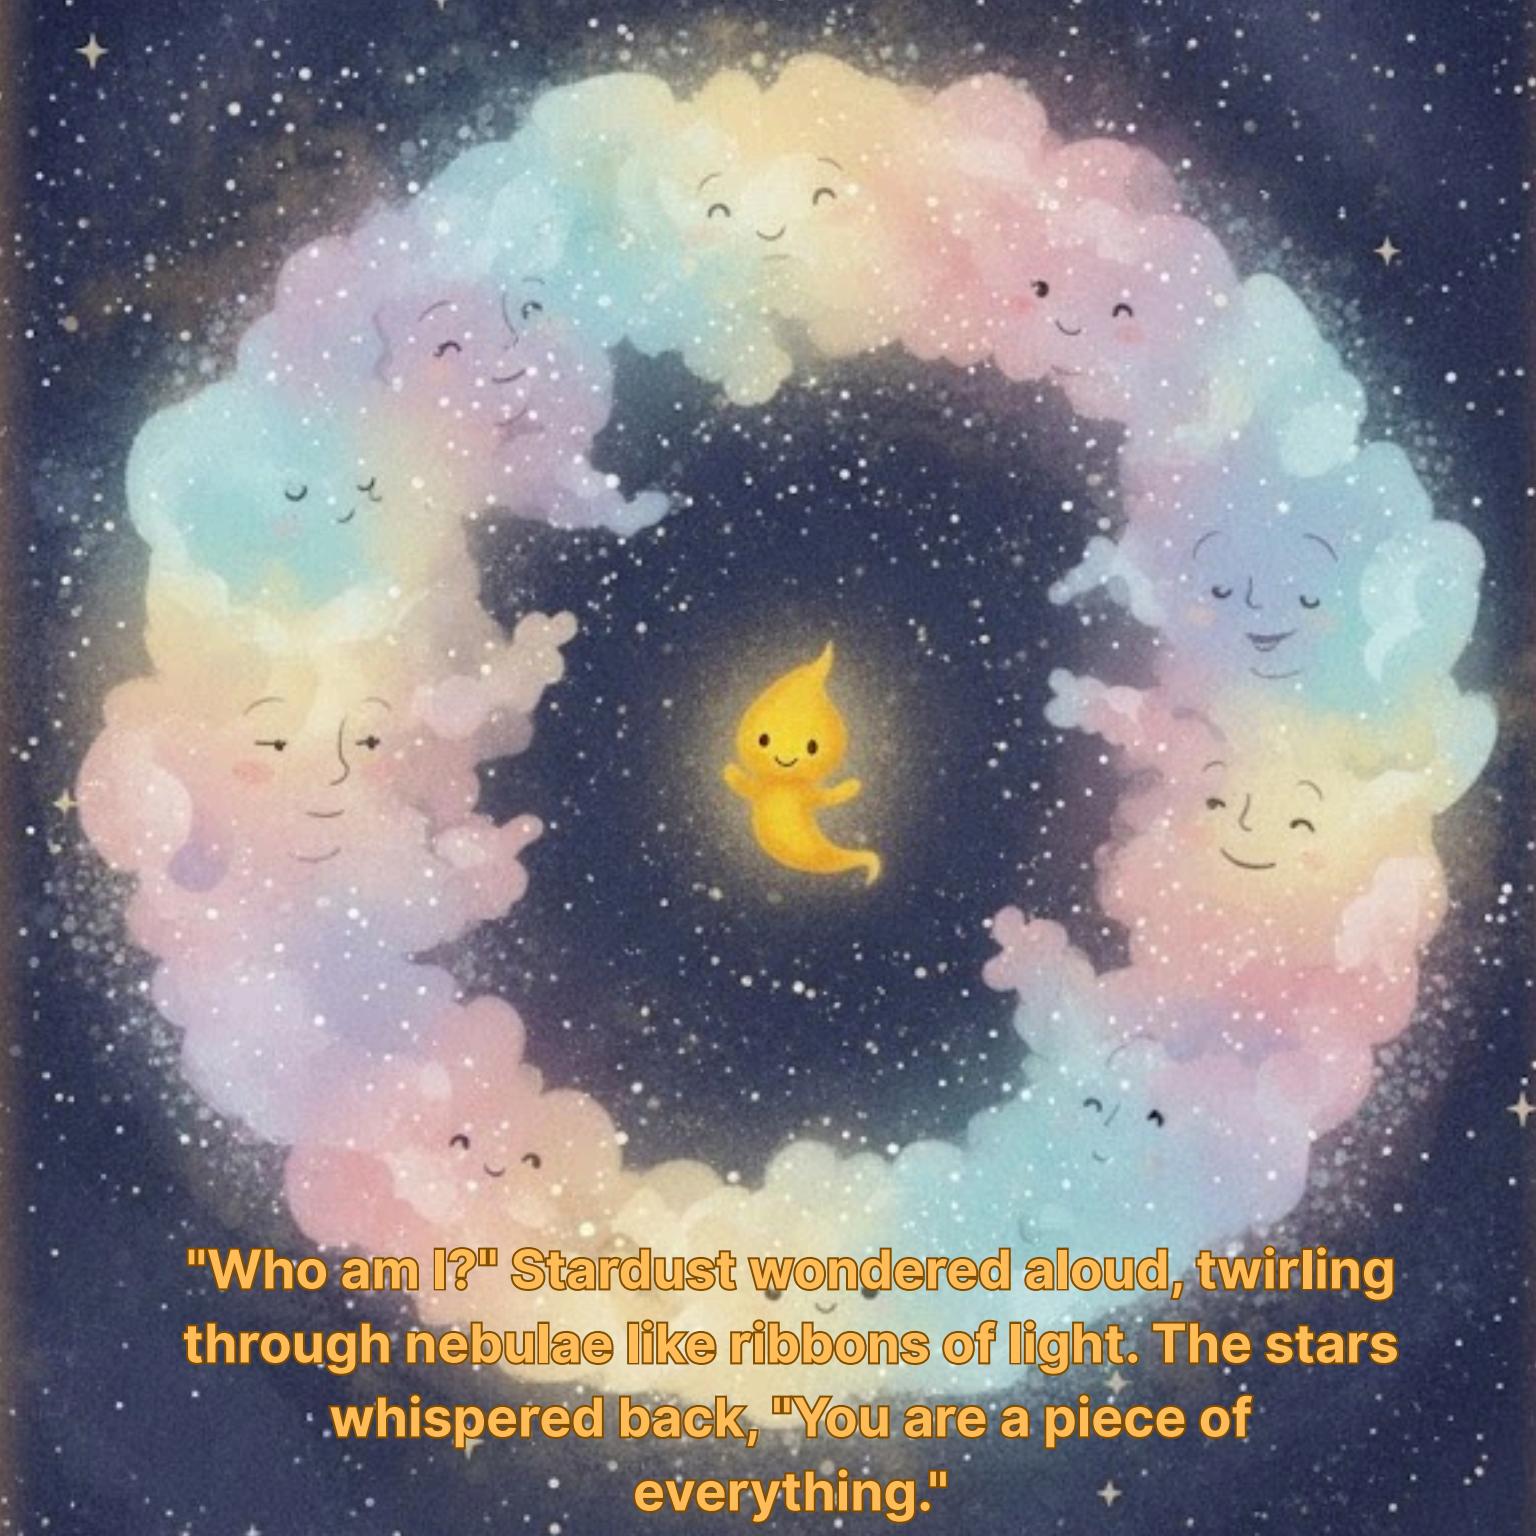

by J. Valentine

In the faraway corners of the universe, where stars are born and galaxies twirl, there was a tiny speck of golden dust. But this was no ordinary speck. It was Stardust, with a sparkling tail that shimmered like sunlight on water.

Stardust danced through the cosmos, curious and bright, weaving between comets and clouds, gliding past glowing moons.

"Who am I?" Stardust wondered aloud, twirling through nebulae like ribbons of light. The stars whispered back, "You are a piece of everything."

Through swirls of gas and bursts of light, Stardust saw stars being born. Massive, glowing, and full of fire.

Suddenly, the sky flashed! A star nearby had exploded. A supernova!

Stardust gasped as waves of color and light rushed past. ‘What was that?’ It floated quietly through the glowing remains. ‘So powerful... but something beautiful is beginning,’ it whispered.

Around a young star, rings of dust began to swirl. A new world was forming.

“We’re forming something new!” the pieces whispered. Stardust twirled among them, curious and glowing.

Stardust giggled as planets spun into being. Big ones with rings, tiny rocky ones, some covered in clouds!

One planet waved with rings, another spun fast with storms. ‘You’re all so different!’ Stardust laughed..

And I helped you grow!

Then Stardust passed icy worlds and fiery ones, each spinning its own story. “Am I part of them too?”

Stardust asked.

The wind of a nearby comet rushed past, carrying Stardust toward something new. They felt pulled by a quiet hum, a planet far below, glowing blue and green.

On this planet, Stardust saw oceans swirl, forests sway, and creatures breathe. A new kind of magic filled the air.

Stardust drifted through time
through fiery volcanoes,
dinosaurs' roars, and the first
flicker of human light.

They watched people dream, build,
explore... And Stardust saw something beautiful a spark inside
every heart.

And then Stardust looked closer...
They saw the sparkle in you.

You smiled and Stardust knew. You carried the story too.

Because you, just like everything in the universe, are made from Stardust too.

And as Stardust drifted onward, it smiled. 'I was part of stars, part of planets... and now, I'm part of everything.'

Look up at the stars... and remember, you're made of Stardust too. Thank you for joining this cosmic adventure.

Dedicated To:
Pickle & Wiggle

Thank you for joining Stardust on this cosmic adventure.
Every page was made with love, for the dreamers and little lights of the world. Never stop wondering the universe is always with you. — Valentine

A journey through the stars, creation, and belonging.
Stardust's Cosmic Adventure reminds us that we are all made of the same shining dust that builds worlds and dreams alike.